Andover's War Book Compiled by Dr. Claude M. Fuess Cited as a Model for Other Communities by National Historian of the American Legion

BUSINESS CHANGES

Blackshaw Jewelry Store Purchased by A. F. Rivard. Ford Agency Taken Over by A. A. Roscoe

The long-established jewelry store at 36 Main street so successfully conducted for the last four years by John D. Blackshaw has been purchased by Albert F. Rivard of Taunton.

Mr. Rivard was for thirteen years an adjuster and finisher on Waltham high-grade watches, and for the last twenty-five years has been in business for himself in Taunton. He is also a skilled optometrist, registered by the state.

Mr. Rivard expects to live in Andover and is at present making his home at 34 Chestnut street.

Mr. Blackshaw came to Andover from St. Johnsbury, Vermont and purchased the business carried on by J. E. Whiting for many years and later by his son, F. E. Whiting. In the four years during which Mr. Blackshaw has managed the business he has made various alterations and additions to the store equipment, added to the lines of stock and materially increased the scope of the business. Although Mr. Blackshaw has carried on the business in Andover, he has made Winchester his home, going back and forth daily between his home and his store. He has not as yet made public his future plans.

The agency for the Ford car with salesroom and service station has the Monrovia building, recently in the hands of the Lennox Motor company, has been taken over by A. A. Roscoe of Arlington.

Mr. Roscoe entered into possession on the first of the month and is now engaged in making various alterations in the arrangement of his new quarters where he will be

"Andover, Massachusetts, in the World War" has met with high approbation and is recommended as a model to other communities planning to publish a record of their part in the World War according to a review by Elen S. Putnam, National Historian of the American Legion, published in the current issue of the "American Legion Weekly."

Historian Putnam characterizes it as "well done," "replete with historical information and a book of which Andover and the town may be proud."

The review of the book appearing under the column "The Legion Library" is as follows:

A Post and Town War History

This article by National Historian Elen S. Putnam is not so much the review of a local war history, prepared by a post of The American Legion, as it is an exposition of the art of compiling such histories. It outlines as a model the history prepared for its town by the post at Andover, Massachusetts, and gives constructive criticism of the few instances in which the National Historian believes the work could have been bettered—or rather, extended.

The office of the National Historian of The American Legion during the past two years has received many requests for information concerning the duties and responsibilities of the post historian. These inquiries more and more request information on following suggestions made in bulletins urging the collection of material for histories of the part each community took in the World War. By reference to what has already been printed in The American Legion Weekly, and to the bulletins which are still obtainable from National Headquarters, it will be seen that the National Historian has urged cooperation in this matter with responsible local organizations or persons.

That the Legion recommendations for the treatment of the war history of communities

 "Turn to the Right" Now on the Screen

To the millions of theatrogoers who enjoyed that greatest stage drama hit of the speaking stage in John Golden's presentation of "Turn to the Right," by Winchell Smith and John E. Hazard, and to the other millions who longed to see it, the news that this universally popular play has been transferred to the screen will prove a joyful note.

This highlight of the stage characterized as "the play of mirth and morals" in its celluloid version is presented by John Golden and Marcus Loew and will be shown Monday and Tuesday at the Colonial theatre. It is a Rex Ingram production distributed by Metro Pictures, and the youthful director who won international fame for his wonderful screen portrayals of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Conquering Power" has added further laurels by this latest cinema offering.

"Turn to the Right" is the story of a small town youth who, unjustly sent to prison, pals up with two crooks. But having served his term he decides to go back to the little home, arriving in time to find that the hard-hearted village skinflint is about to close out a mortgage on the homestead. With the aid of his two crook pals a way is found to beat out the old skinflint, and then the two crooks under the homey influence of the aged mother find a new road to life and love.

All that delightful mixture of heart throbs and smiles which won such a wonderful tribute from the public in the stage play has been preserved and intensified in the screen version. In the leading feminine role is Alice Terry who won her way to fame in "The Four Horsemen" and "The Conquering Power" while playing opposite her Jack Mulhall who has made a reputation on both stage and screen. Others in the cast are Harry Myers, who was the Yankee in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court"; George Cooper, Edward Connelly, Lydia Knott, Betty Allen, Margaret Loomis, William Bletcher, Eric Mayne and Ray Ripley.

"Turn to the Right" was adapted by June Mathis and Mary O'Hara and photographed by John F. Seitz. Technical direction was by A. J. Myers and Harold Grieve. Starrett Ford was production manager.

Department of Agriculture Plans New Work to Help Women

An announcement of unusual significance to both farm and city women was made today by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to the effects that steps will be taken shortly to "strengthen the scientific work of the Department as it may be related to home economics." A similar statement from Secretary Wallace is being made today by Assistant Secretary Fugley, who is speaking before the American Home Economics Association at Corvallis, Oregon.

"Ultimately I have in view making the home economics work an independent bureau," said Secretary Wallace in his preliminary announcement, "ranking with the other bureaus of the department, and placing it in the hands of a woman of executive ability, thorough scientific training, and broad and sympathetic understanding of what is needed to make such a bureau most helpful to the women of the country."

Work for women has grown steadily in the Department of Agriculture. In 1915, what has been called the Office of Home Economics was created as a part of the extension service. In this home economics work a great deal of attention has been given to studies of foods and how best to use them, labor-saving devices for the home, studies of dressmaking and materials, etc. While work of this sort is planned primarily for the help of women on the farms, much of it is equally helpful to women in the cities, and especially to those in moderate circumstances who must exercise economy and get the greatest value for the money spent.

The woman chief of the proposed new bureau will rank with the chiefs of the other bureaus of the Department of Agriculture, attend the weekly conferences in the Secretary's office and thus bring the women's viewpoint into the general work of the department.

Sermon on "No More War"

"The doctrine, 'My Country, right or wrong,' in my opinion is rank heresy," declared Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the Free church, Sunday morning in his sermon on "No More War." "It was a doctrine which led Germany into the jaws of hell. There is an allegiance that is higher than to one's country; an allegiance to God and to Truth and to humanity; a belief in the Christian faith and in mankind. If that is treason, then St. John and St. Paul and the pilgrim Fathers and George Washington were traitors. They owed an allegiance higher than to country and risked their lives for what they believed was right."

Mr. Wheelock said it was an age of great tasks. The industrial problem must be settled so that labor and capital may dwell together in unity and peace. There was the immigration problem with hordes from the other side landing daily on these shores. There was a task for the church to unite in carrying the gospel of a common Lord. These were some of the problems and tasks to be solved.

The greatest task however was to get the nations of the world to dwell together in peace. For after all many of the problems of today spring from war. The cry of the 20th century is for peace. This cry is nothing new. Men from earliest times have dreamed of the day when swords would be beaten into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks.

On the anniversary of the outbreak of the great World War, people of fourteen nations are thinking of this task, the elimination of war. France, Germany, Austria, England, America are today holding an international campaign that wars shall be no more. And it is a poor patriot and a poorer Christian that does not help toward that objective.

In the first place Mr. Wheelock said, inadequate to the task. The children of Israel in bondage in Egypt could never have gained the "land flowing with milk and honey," which the twelve spies unanimously reported but for the faith of one who was certain that the obstacles could be overcome and the objective reached. Just so in the fight for "No More War." Many men think it would be a grand thing but they lack the faith adequate to the task. They argue that disease and war have always been with the human race and must continue to the end. Disease and war are obstacles to the Kingdom of God and Christian people must concentrate their efforts to eliminate them. They have what has been accomplished to combat disease. Slavery existed and there was a belief that it must continue for all time. Sixty years ago slavery ceased in this country because there was an adequate faith.

The task of eliminating war has been placed upon us by God. This cancer can be eradicated by faith like the prophesy of old. The children of Israel led by a man of faith overcame the giants who opposed their entry into the promised land. Today the giants of sin, indifference and selfishness keep us out of the land of peace. These will eventually be overcome by men of a faith adequate to the task. It may take years, generations or centuries, but let us have faith that it can be done.

Mr. Wheelock urged the necessity of the need of cultivating an international mind. Not an internationalism which is so often talked of as a bugaboo of future complications of the world but the international mind as expressed in the belief of St. Paul that God made all nations of one blood; children of a common Father in heaven; that what affects one affects the other; that the economic condition of the other peoples of the earth affects the worker in America for good or bad.

He also emphasized the need of an Americanism which sees impartially the rights of all as well as our own. This can be accomplished here by teaching the young people that some of the liberties they enjoy came from other sources than America. The fight for freedom and liberty did not begin in America. It was fought and won in the great Magna Charta. Culture, liberty and freedom are international.

He urged the need of courage to try experiments. The conference of nations at Washington was an experiment and it may do more to check war than anything ever tried before. The Quakers are experimenting. The have the courage to go among their former enemies and in Germany, Austria and Russia are spreading the real spirit of love and good deeds.

Mr. Wheelock suggested that America, whose hands were cleaner than any of the other nations of the world in war, call another conference on international law and other problems which would lead to "No More War," and plead for a faith, a vision and a courage to conquer our part in the great task of bringing in peace.

At the South church Rev. Percy H. Epler of Methuen, who exchanged with the pastor, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, referred to the "No More War" campaign during the service and read the appeal which has been simultaneously made in all the larger nations of the world.

Bentley School Moves to More Comfortable Quarters

The Bentley School of Accounting and Finance will move this month into its new home, a large building at 915-921 Boylston street, Boston, which has been remodelled to meet the growing requirements of the institution.

This latest step in the growth of the Bentley School calls attention to the fact that this institution has now become the largest professional school of collegiate grade in the world devoted exclusively to the training of accountants. Its remarkably rapid growth is a tribute to the judgment of Harry C. Bentley, C. P. A., that there was need of a school restricted to the teaching of Accounting.

The School was established in 1917 with a class of 29 students, at 125 Tremont street. Last season its enrollment was 2194, and in addition to all the space that could be obtained in the original building the classrooms had spread into two other buildings. In its new home on Boylston street, all the classrooms will be under one roof. The offices in the original home of the school at 125 Tremont street, will be retained, however.

Mr. Bentley has devoted the past 25 years to the study, practice and teaching of accounting, and his writings are widely known. He is a certified public accountant in four states. After practicing his profession in New York City for several years, he was appointed assistant professor of secretarial studies at Simmons College in 1911, and the following year was engaged by the School of Commerce and Finance of Northeastern College to plan the courses, organize the faculty and teach accounting. In 1912 he was appointed dean of the school and during the four years of his administration it became the third largest professional school of its kind in the United States. Mr. Bentley resigned as dean of this school to accept an appointment as professor of accounting on the faculty of the College of Business Administration of Boston University, and soon afterward was made head of that department. He resigned from Boston University in 1917 and established the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance at the suggestion of a body of his former students who were very anxious to continue their training in accounting under him.

The school offers both day and evening courses, and appeals more particularly to men who desire to specialize in accounting. Its students come from various parts of the country as far west as South Dakota.

Two Thousand Attend Farmers' Week

A start toward the establishment of guaranteed sources of disease free poultry stock stands out as the most significant in the Farmers' Week concluded July 28 at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, which drew a total attendance of close to two thousand farmers and home-makers in the four days.

The poultrymen closed their tenth annual convention at the college by the selection of a committee of the leading poultry breeders in the state, empowered to draw up a plan for the accrediting of the poultry flocks which upon official inspection are certified as meeting a rigid standard of health and a reasonable degree of production. It is expected that this committee will report at the mid-winter poultry meeting in Boston, but that final organization of a Massachusetts Certified Breeders Association will not come before the annual poultry convention at the M. A. C. next summer.

"This organized effort of the poultry industry to free the flocks of the state from disease will establish guaranteed sources of disease-free, high-producing stock," says Prof. W. C. Monahan, extension professor of poultry husbandry at M. A. C., and a member of the organizing committee. "Some breeders are already meeting the standard we shall set for clean flocks and purity of breeding," he said, "but they are subject to unfair advertising competition from others who have a few of their stock tested at the college so that they may advertise 'tested stock,' and who often do not bother to eliminate the birds which proved under test to be unfit for breeding."

In the fruit and tobacco meetings, greater efficiency in plant disease control was evidenced. For in this rainy year of ideal conditions for disease infection, it was reported that the apple crop will be relatively clean of scab, and that even the dread tobacco wildfire has been controlled by growers who followed efficient protective measures. Effective protection of potatoes from late blight is established practice in the state. A large attendance of bookkeepers, poultrymen, fruit growers, and tobacco growers was registered during the week. The women's meetings were attended by over 100 women daily for discussions of home management, food preserving, dyeing, and furnishing topics.

Home-Storage Budget for Winter Vegetables

A home storage budget establishing the minimum amount of each vegetable that is required by a family of five in order to have one vegetable besides potatoes everyday all winter has been computed by Prof. William R. Cole, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. An exhibit of a model cellar which Prof. Cole says any householder could build is one of the important exhibits that the Extension Service of the college will display to agricultural folk this fall.

The model storage and the storage budget were exhibited at the recent Farmers' Week at the college. Prof. Cole states the minimum of each vegetable item in the winter's diet for this average family as follows: 15 bushels potatoes, 75 lbs. cabbage, 50 lbs. onions, 40 lbs. carrots, 30 lbs. squash, 25 lbs. beets, 25 lbs. parsnips, and 40 lbs. celery plants.

This budget assumes that the canning closet is fairly well stocked. To supplement the vegetable storage Prof. Cole recommends the following minimum of canned vegetables: 63 pts. tomatoes, 25 pts. spinach, 13 pts. string beans, 10 pts. corn, 10 pts. asparagus, 7 pts. lima beans, and 7 pts. peas. This budget might be modified to suit family tastes, but Prof. Cole insists that most families ought to store more vegetables and to can more vegetables.

A storage cellar makes possible great savings in cost of vegetables. Prof. Cole has figured that over a period of the last eight years the householder who bought his potatoes in the fall paid $16.05 for his 15 bushels whereas his neighbor who bought the same supply by the peck through the winter paid $28.20. On other vegetables the saving was the same proportion, in some cases even greater saving is possible he says. Prof. Cole groups vegetables for storage in three classes. Group 1—beets, carrots, potatoes, parsnips, turnips and celery—requires a cool 35-40 degrees moist cellar with little or no air. Group 2—cabbage, cauliflower and celery—requires the same conditions plus good air circulation. Group 3—squash, pumpkins, tomatoes, and onions—require warm 45-60 degrees dry storage with good air circulation.

The waters of the River Jordan in Palestine are to be developed into power to turn the wheels of new industry. The British Government has granted a concession for the utilization of the river for 70 years. The energy obtained will be used for house and street lighting, pumping, water supply, railways and many other purposes.

Agricultural Teachers Visit Twin Cedar Farm

Agricultural teachers of Massachusetts, to the number of sixty, who are attending the annual summer conference being held at Hathorne visited the farm of Ralph N. C. Barnes on Sunset Rock road yesterday afternoon to inspect his demonstration field of potatoes and the work done in thinning the apple and peach crop.

Mr. Barnes success in raising peaches and apples is well known, his results being attained by a most careful study of the newest and most scientific methods. One important process is the thinning of the fruit when it is about the size of one's thumb. This was done on eighteen apple and peach trees under the direction of an expert in pomology from the State Agricultural school in Amherst and the county agent at Hathorne. The rest of the orchard was then thinned by Mr. Barnes in a similar manner and was exhibited to students of agriculture as an interesting and successful demonstration of this principle.

An acre of potatoes, Irish Cobbler and Green Mountain, has been planted, cultivated and sprayed with a view to producing a large yield per acre. An exact account of costs has also been kept. It has been necessary to spray eight or nine times for aphids with Bordeaux and arsenate of lead, a power sprayer being used which reduces the labor to a minimum. Adverse weather conditions will prevent a record-breaking crop but the excellent care given the field will undoubtedly increase the quantity of the potato crop as well as its quality.

Early Morning Fire

An alarm from box 423 on Chestnut street at 3.20 Tuesday morning called the department to a blaze on the roof of a bay window on the west side of the house occupied by John H. Proctor at the corner of Whittier and Chestnut streets.

The fire evidently originated on the roof and worked its way up the shingles to the main house and into a partition. The damage is estimated at $50.

Appointed Director of Women's Physical Education in Ohio University

The following notice reprinted from The Pantagraph of Bloomington, Illinois will be of interest to the many Andover friends of Miss Lydia Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Clark of Argilla road:

Miss Lydia Clark, Director of Physical Education for Women in the State Normal University for seven years, has been appointed Associate Professor and director of Women's Physical Education in the Ohio State University at Columbus, Ohio, and is to begin her duties this fall. Miss Clark spent the week-end at Columbus in consultation with the Ohio authorities.

Miss Clark spent seven years here as a teacher and has built up a department that ranks with the best in the Normal schools of the United States and is undoubtedly the best in Illinois or surrounding states. She is a graduate of Columbia University at New York, has studied dancing under the greatest dancing teacher in the United States, Schallie of New York, and has done graduate work at Wellesley and other big schools.

In 1914 she came to Normal as assistant in physical training and the following year succeeded Miss Cummings as director of that department. Now she has two assistants and a hired pianist working with her in training from 300 to 500 women all the time. She is the author of a text book for teachers, "Physical Education for the Elementary School." This book has been adopted by the state reading circles in several states.

As a director of festivals and pageants, Miss Clark has proven herself a woman of great skill. Her festivals have often been affairs as pretty as are produced anywhere and her Shakespearean Pageant or Masque given several years ago with the help of Miss Grace Arlington Owen, was a masterpiece, having hundreds of children and Normal students in it and drawing a crowd of 10,000 people.

She has been very active in promoting physical education throughout the state of Illinois, having worked for several years in many county institutes, and having organized the Illinois High School Girls Athletic Association, of which she is now president. She has also conducted girls camps for high school girls and done other things to promote better physical training among high schools. Several of her students at Normal now hold positions similar to hers here in other Normal schools in Illinois, Missouri, and South Dakota.

As head of women's physical training at Columbus, Miss Clark will have four or five assistants working under her and will have a student body of 8000 to draw from. This is a great advance for her, both in rank and salary.

Punchard Graduate Joint Author of New School Song Book

"The Rainbow Song Book" an interesting collection of songs especially adapted to the use of secondary schools is of particular interest in Andover as the words for the more than thirty songs were all written by Miss Adele Marie Shaw who attended school here graduating from Punchard with the class of 1881.

Miss Shaw is the author of "The Coast of Freedom," "The Lady of the Dynamos" and "First-hand Studies of the United States Public School System" published in the "World's Work."

Writing the songs has given Miss Shaw a wonderful opportunity to harness her poetic imagination to serve the needs of the young people whose tastes she has met with a sympathetic understanding. Their themes are most varied, ranging from ballads filled with literary and historic allusion to "snap-py" if not slangy up-to-date verse. "I'm Wamba," "Song of Gurth the Swineherd," "The Weaver of Ravello's Gold," "Rebecca's Prayer" and "The Merrie Men to Robin Hood" immediately suggest their relation to well-known English classics. Others such as "The Mountain Lake," "Dip Paddle, Dip" and "The Brook" breathe the free spirit of the great out-of-doors.

"Sleepy Jennetta" and "Cut it Out" written in a lighter vein are distinctly up to date, and set to lively music are sure to be enjoyed by the young people who will sing them and at the same time keenly relish the wholesome advice so merrily offered. "Land of the Loyal" and "March, March On" ring with patriotism.

The songs lend themselves for either solo or class work in connection with dramatic entertainments related to school work, the dialogue for one such production given in New York City being included in the book.

The music by Elizabeth Alden and C. Irving Valentine, director of music in the Newtown High school, New York City is tuneful and the spirit of words and music most happily harmonious.

The book is published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Frank S. McDonald Named District Deputy Grand Knight

Grand Knight Frank S. McDonald and Andover Council 1078, K. of C. have been honored by State Deputy William C. Prout, head of the order in Massachusetts who has named Grand Knight McDonald to be District Deputy of District 29. The district includes Lawrence Council, 67; Lowell Council 72; Wakefield Council 104 and Haverhill Council 202.

The recognition of Grand Knight McDonald and Andover Council is well deserved and it is the first time in the history of the local council that a district deputy has been named. The local council stands high in the state, and has been frequently honored by visits from prominent members of the order, including Grand Knight Flaherty, who spoke here two years ago in the Town hall. For the year ending October 1921, Andover Council led the state in insurance members. Out of a recent class of 32 there were 25 accepted for insurance.

The newly appointed Deputy has had a big share in the growth of Andover Council and is one of its most enthusiastic members and ardent workers. The honor is more appreciated as it came without any solicitation on his part.

Sutherland Rescues Two From Drowning

While conducting a canoe trip on the Connecticut river near Hanover, N. H. Monday evening Alex Sutherland, last winter the coach of the Phillips Andover academy swimming team, rescued Jane and Elizabeth Hamilton, daughters of a prominent business man with a summer residence in the New Hampshire town from drowning. The girls, who were canoeing near Oxford, were thrown into the water when one of them leaned over the side of the canoe to reach for something. Both were unable to swim but managed to hold on to the overturned canoe. Several minutes later Sutherland's party came along. When abreast of the overturned canoe Sutherland left the craft he was in, swam to the girls and took them ashore. After he had given the girls first aid treatment, they were able to go to their home.

Sutherland is this summer athletic director of Camp Wynona at Fairlee on Lake Morey, Vt. He coached the Andover and Technology swimming teams last winter and also acted as trainer for the Andover football and baseball squads. During the war he was the swimming and life-saving instructor of the first naval district.

Called to St. Paul's No. Andover

Rev. Raymond Holmes Kendrick, rector of St. Peter's church, Jamaica Plain, has resigned that parish to accept the call from North Andover. He will take up his new duties as rector of St. Paul's church on Sunday October 1.

Mr. Kendrick is a young man, a native of Springfield, Mass., a graduate of Amherst college in the class of 1910 and of the Cambridge Theological school in the class of 1913. For two years, Mr. Kendrick was assistant minister at St. Peter's church, Albany, resigning that position in 1915 to become rector of St. Martin's church, New Bedford, a parish composed entirely of English mill operatives.

In 1918, Mr. Kendrick left his New Bedford parish to work as a civilian chaplain under the Church War Commission at the Debarbation hospital, New York City where he ministered to hundreds of wounded men. Since 1919, Mr. Kendrick has been rector of St. Peter's church, Jamaica Plain, where he has been an active member of the Jamaica Plain Ministerial association and also Chaplain of Loyalty lodge, A. F. and A. M.

Mr. Kendrick's father, the Hon. E. P. Kendrick, is a former Mayor of Springfield and is one of the most prominent laymen in the Western diocese, having served for years as Senior Warden of the large parish of Christ church and was for many years one of the Standing Committee of the Diocese. Rev. Mr. Kendrick was married in 1918 to Miss Sarah Hopkins of New Bedford. They have one child, a son, a year old.

Pythian Sisters Outing

A hundred members and friends attended the outing of Garfield Temple Pythian Sisters held Saturday at Revere under ideal weather conditions.

An early start was made by the first truck which went by way of Lynn Beach where the forenoon was spent. The second truck left at 1 o'clock and went direct to Revere. Basket lunch was enjoyed and a dip in the ocean, followed by a visit to all the places of amusement gave thrills enough for one day.

The committee of arrangements was Miss Sarah Hilton, M. E. C., chairman; Mrs. William J. Orr, Mrs. Henry Fairweather, Mrs. Harry Gouck, Miss MacLellan, James C. Soutar and Thomas B. Gorrie.

Down With "No More War"

The Townsman is in receipt of the following communication from a citizen whose opinions are worthy of consideration, even if not approved. It is published here because the writer desires to comment upon it at close range. The communication is as follows:

Last Saturday evening in front of Memorial hall, there took place an incident that might have been taken more seriously than it was if the most prominent figure had been someone else.

On the two cannon which flank the entrance to the public library, were placed some of the "No More War" posters provided by the National Council for the Reduction of Armaments, and faithfully distributed during the week by willing young ladies to shopkeepers and others who were very glad to accept them for display in their windows and other conspicuous places, thereby lending their support to a most commendable movement. These papers remained for some time in that well chosen place as an appropriate protest against a continuance of armament for the main purpose of making war, being reviewed with evident approval by the public. Suddenly an auto drew up to the curbstone and from it with a haughty air descended a majestic personage who with a fine flourish, tore the papers (which seemed to give him great offense) from their places, making a wonderful display of arrogance by doing in this setting himself in opposition to the great concourse of right-thinking people all over the world who desire that war shall be abolished. Our friend, in his blind fervor, could not see, behind the smile of amusement that overspread the faces of the on-lookers at the ridiculous figure he cut, that perhaps there lurked an almost uncontrollable desire to interfere had it been as dignified to do so as it would have been excusable. One young man standing nearby expressed himself very well by saying, "I believe I could get a Ford if I sent this story in to the paper as the funniest thing I have seen."

Another added, "Well, I suppose that if I looked half as decent in uniform as he does when he is dressed up, I should likewise hate to give up wearing it upon occasions. Now I do not wish to be understood as attempting anything like even one word against the army or navy by whom we were delivered such a short while ago, from the curse of militarism in its worst form. On the contrary, I want it understood that nobody has a greater right than I, to cherish a martial spirit, and that I admire military grandeur, with respect in the highest degree for all engaged in that profession; especially those of our own town who by the possession of proper qualifications have attained to high official rank and international fame. Those having the right blood must know how it effects one to look upon such a soldier. But I am at the same time with the majority who believe it would be less difficult to settle international differences by diplomacy if that were the only means available. What the alliance is contending for it seems to me is the reduction of armaments or its discontinuance altogether, with the main object of preserving peace.

It is then too expensive a proposition at any price and dangerous besides to maintain for the sole purpose of display. With apologies for anything in the above remarks that seems to indicate a combative disposition, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

PEACE WORKER.

It is of little importance who the persons are, figuring in this communication and the incident referred to. It would be quite possible to say things quite as caustic about the writer as he says about the person he criticizes, but that is much beside the question. The writer believes that about the stupidest movement of many a day is this "No more war" propaganda, but it isn't nearly as stupid as it is subtle in its real purpose to use some excellent people for the promotion of a more or less discredited group of individuals who need some free publicity.

Andover has fallen for this bunk and in falling, some over zealous people have done what is usually done in such cases, gone too far in their efforts. Their posting of signs even included war memorials for backgrounds in the shape of the two cannon in front of the Memorial hall. That they were torn down by one who objected seems to the writer to be a most natural thing, and we are mighty glad he did it. If they are put there again, we hope he will again rip them down, and if he needs somebody to pay his fine the bank has this writing for authority to charge it to the writer's account. We say good for the man with nerve to act, when action seems necessary.

Now just a word about "No more war." Of course we all wish for no more war, but woe to the nation that construes those words, in this day and generation into "No more preparedness for war."

Editorial Cinders

The time of the Candidate show is at hand. Like prize-seeking dogs in the dog show, the seekers for political honors will for the next three months be put through their paces, via the route of steamed clams, husked corn and watermelon rinds. What a joy that it comes but once in two years!

The moving of the big brick hall at Phillips is one of the most interesting engineering feats ever seen in Andover. As it leaves its long-time resting place and opens the vista beyond one readily sees the good judgment shown in planning the new recitation hall as the centre of this new quadrangle.

President Harding finds himself in a most uncomfortable position on the Railroad strike. He creates a commission to handle the problem, approves its finding, and then compromises on the most essential feature of that finding. "The school of compromise," sometimes called the U. S. Senate cannot be safely relied upon in national crises.

P. A. Faculty Residences

There will be several changes in the arrangements for housing the Phillips Academy faculty for the coming year. The Park house, will be occupied by Dr. George E. Dimock, instructor in Latin, and his family. The America house known to the Alumni as the Blunt house, will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Allen and Frederick J. Daly will move to Bancroft hall. The new Osgood Johnson hall will have on one side of the first floor, the family of Guy H. Eaton and on the other Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Benton.

Montville E. Peck and his family will occupy the suite in Adams hall vacated by Mr. Benton. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Peck, after their year's leave of absence in Europe will return to their residence in the Farrar house.

The Clough house will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Fraser and family who for the past year have been living at 118 Main street.

Plans Matured for Auxiliary Lawn Party
The group captained by Mrs. John Henderson which is hard at work to raise money to carry on the work of the Woman's Auxiliary to the American Legion has completed its plans for the lawn party to be held at 64 Red Spring road, next Thursday, August 10.

Those who wish to ride to the scene of festivities will find automobile conveyance starting from Memorial Hall library.

The response to the solicitors has been very generous and the various tables will have a variety of good things with which to tempt purchasers.

In addition to the chairman mentioned last week Mrs. David Forbes will have charge of the grab bag. The fortune-telling feature is also assured.

Real Estate Changes Hands

Papers were passed this week conveying the property on Bartlett street occupied by Jonathan Holt to John Sullivan of Lawrence.

Lewellen Pomeroy has recently purchased from Mrs. B. Frank Smith fourteen acres of land fronting on Central street just above the residence of Mrs. T. F. Pratt. He expects to develop the land for house lots.

The sale was made through the W. H. Higgins real-estate agency.

John Scherner has sold his place on Ballardvale road to Ernest Lamb, chauffeur for Cornelius Wood. The deal was made through the office of W. H. Higgins.

Weddings

McCOLLUM — JOHNSON

A quiet wedding took place Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Lillian May Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Johnson of Harding street was united in marriage with Frederick William McCollum of West Andover.

The ceremony was performed at Christ church by Rev. C. W. Henry, and was attended by the immediate families of bride and bridegroom. The bride wore a handsome dress of navy blue crepe with a hat to match and carried pink roses. She was attended by Miss Annie Laurie as bridesmaid, who was dressed in blue canton crepe with a hat to match. The best man was George McCollum, brother of the bridegroom. The bride was given in marriage by her mother.

Following the ceremony the young couple received the best wishes of those assembled, and left immediately on a wedding trip. Mrs. McCollum has been employed as a clerk in the Tye Rubber company office. The bridegroom is employed as a pressman at the Andover Press.

HENDERSON — BURTON

Wednesday afternoon, a quiet wedding took place at the Union Congregational church parsonage, Ballardvale when Miss Daisy Burton of this town and William J. Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson of Andover street were united in matrimony.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Augustus H. Fuller, pastor of the church, in the presence of relatives. The groom is a well known Andover boy and a veteran of the World War. He served with the A. E. F. in France for a year and was in the Argonne fight near the Meuse.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson left after the ceremony on a wedding trip through New Hampshire and on their return will live in Andover.

Twins Observe Birthday

Misses Ruth and Nettie Pritchard of Morton street, who have been spending some weeks in the Camp Fire Girls' camp in West Mansfield, celebrated their birthday Tuesday at camp. They were given a party by their friends, which was attended by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Pritchard.

Both girls are having a wonderful summer in camp, and are ranking high in camp service. They are members of the Waukegan Camp Fire which is directed by Miss Carita Bigelow, and are enthusiastic workers in the council meetings.

The Waukegan girls all spent one week in West Mansfield, and the Pritchards have stayed on, enjoying the camp life. Following is given the camp creed, which each girl agrees to, and by which she patterns her life.

I believe in the future.
I believe, therefore, in the today.
And I try to make my life
A joy to myself and
A pleasure to those about me.
I realize the destiny within me;
I try to find the beautiful in life,
And where it is not, I create beauty.
I feel my responsibility as a citizen of a great nation.

I feel my glory as one of the mothers of the new generation.
Which with new eyes and with steadier steps
Will reach the high places that now
Are but a purple haze on the horizon.

I believe in the new womanhood
Which combines the beauty of the old womanhood
With the citizenship and social consciousness.

I know I am and hold within me the promise of the future.
I realize my responsibility.
I do not flinch or falter.
I am a Camp Fire Girl.

Auto Plunges Over Embankment

No serious damage resulted either to the machine of Joseph Plouffe of 40 Paul Gore street, Jamaica Plain, or to its five occupants as it was forced through the fence and over the embankment just south of George May's on the Reading road as the result of a collision last Tuesday morning.

Just how the accident happened, has not been determined, but the story is that a Haverhill car registered to Rose A. Simard of 40 Hillside street and operated by Albert Grimium of 12 Savoy street, Haverhill, was "hogging the road." The car which went over the embankment was hauled out by a machine from Morrissey's garage and was able to proceed to its destination under its own power.

A car operated by George M. Mayne of 48 Adams avenue, Everett, ran wild on Main street at 3.30 a. m. of the same morning and in attempting to traverse a street encumbered with wooden horses, a trench-digger, sand bags and other impediments of road construction, the wind shield was broken and Albert E. Sullivan of 47 Central street, Everett, was slightly wounded on the head. The driver and Raymond S. Osborne of 10 Tremont street, Boston, the third occupant of the car were uninjured.

George Murphy of 118 Stearns street, Lawrence, driver of a Standard Oil truck appeared before Judge Stone in police court last Friday afternoon, charged with operating a motor vehicle at a reckless rate of speed. He paid $5 as cost of court and his case was continued for sentence.

The young men are Robert G. Allen, captain of last year's track team; Richard Allen, his brother; R. O. Greene of Denver, Colo., and Halcomb S. McCumb of New York, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Valentine of Brechin terrace, residents of Andover for the past twenty-one years quietly observe the 25th anniversary of their wedding on Sunday. Both are natives of Arbroath, Scotland.

Alexander Valentine and Wilhelmina Reid were married in St. Ninian's chapel of the Old Established church in Arbroath, which was a part of the wedding, on July 30, 1897.

The officiating clergyman was Rev. James M. Hunt, assisted by Mr. William Wilson. Twenty-one years ago they emigrated to America and settled in Andover, where they have since resided. Mr. Valentine is a cabinet maker by trade and conducts a successful business at the corner of Park and Bartlett streets. BRAIN'S SIZE DOESN'T COUNT

Men With Small Ones May Have Larger Mind Capacity Than Many Others.

As the action of the brain has not, as yet, been seen by man, no one at present knows just what it is, beyond its merely physiological or mechanical substance. It is said that the brain of the normal man contains over 800,000,000 cells, and that about 3,000 are destroyed every minute. If this is the case then a new brain appears about once in sixty days. The normal brain has a volume of 58 to 106 cubic inches. The brain of the Anglo-Saxon and the German, and of other civilized nations, averages the larger number, while the negro brain occupies a space of about 90 cubic inches, and some Australian natives have brains of only about 58 cubic inches. The male brain is about 10 per cent heavier or larger than that of the female. The most intelligent animals have only about sixteen ounces of brains. The size of the brain, if it is not below normal, does not appear to influence the intellectuality of its possessor. Men with small brains may have larger mind capacity than some of those possessing brains weighing several ounces more. It would appear then that the size of the brain, unless it be unusually small, has little to do with its quality.—Seattle Daily Times.

Cannibalistic Sea Gulls.

It is not generally realized how great an enemy the sea gull is to smaller birds. An observer ventures the opinion that the reason why small migrants invariably cross the sea by night is that otherwise they would be simply exterminated by gulls. Sometimes it happens that a change in the wind delays the arrival of flights of spring migrants, so that they fail to make a landing before daylight. Light-house keepers have then witnessed scenes of savage slaughter; hundreds of poor, tired, little songsters being hunted down by gulls, seized and devoured.

Year by year in England gulls work further and further inland, and in bad weather may be seen almost anywhere, even in the Midlands. Indeed, on one occasion a number were noticed in a flooded meadow near Leamington, a town which claims to be almost the geographical center of England.

Putting Shad in the Hudson.

Every river flowing into the Atlantic from the St. Lawrence down to the St. Johns is a shad river; that is, the shad come into the fresh waters to spawn. The Hudson used to be one of the famous shad rivers, but of recent years, perhaps because of the sewage and oil near New York, the fish have fallen off. This spring the conservation commission of New York state has planted a million fry in the Hudson. A million is not much when it comes to young shad, for a single roe, if it hatched 100 per cent, would produce a tenth of a million fishes; but a million fry, if they all grew up, would mean a good deal to the epicures who look to the Hudson for the toothless and toothsome shad.

is not only feasible, but advisable, is demonstrated by what has been accomplished and what is in progress of accomplishment.

A concrete example will best illustrate what can be done by the post historian, or by him in connection with one or more persons who are interested and competent to prepare a history of the part the community has taken in the World War.

The first local history of this character which has come to the notice of the National Historian is that prepared by Claude M. Fues, historian of Andover (Massachusetts). Post, entitled "Andover, Massachusetts, in the World War," and published by the town under the auspices of the Andover Post. This volume was published late in 1921, and cost the town $3,000. The edition of 1,500 copies was distributed free of cost to service men and to heads of families in town. All work of preparation was done gratuitously, and in passing, let it be said, well done.

The scheme of the book is very much that advised by the National Historian. Following a brief preface containing acknowledgments, is Chapter 1, entitled "The Spirit of the Town." This chronicles the reaction of the townspeople to the news of the outbreak of the war in 1914, and to subsequent events, their immediate lining up in sentiment with the Allies, and the early enlistments of Andover men in Canadian forces, as well as the attendance (by name) from Andover in the Citizen Training Camps. Then comes the story of how Andover received the news that we had entered the war, steps that were taken by local civic organizations to make ready, and a very brief account of happenings in town for which the war was responsible. This whole chapter, a bird's-eye view comprises but thirty-eight pages.

The sixteen pages of Chapter 2, "The Glorious Dead," are devoted to personal sketches of Andover men who fell in action or died of wounds or disease during the war. Portraits are reproduced. A delicate touch is added by the insertion before each sketch of a few lines of verse, applicable to each instance. Fourteen of Andover's heroes were members of the Canadian forces.

Chapter 3 is on "The Andover Committee of Public Safety," prepared by the chairman of the committee, covering the period of 1917-19 and under this main caption are found lesser reports of the various sub-committees, the Finance Committee, the Food Production Committee, the Health Committee and other bodies, including the State Guard Committee. The Massachusetts State Guard took the place of the National Guard. The organization in Andover was Co. H, 16th Regiment, and was the outcome of the two Home Guard companies organized earlier. A roster of the company is printed, and a history of the activities of the company, including its work in camp and during the influenza epidemic, is made of those of the members who passed from its ranks into the Army or Navy, an event which frequently happened.

Just as the above chapter describes some of the work by the townspeople Chapters 4 and 5 are devoted to "The Liberty Loan Campaigns," "The Thrift and War Savings Stamp Campaigns," and both add to our knowledge of former town activities—namely, those who contributed their services, and outlining the manner of work, the quotas assigned and the results obtained. Details of the drives are given and reproduction of posters used and programs of meetings appear. Such activities are as much a history of a town's participation in the war as the story of its military organizations. No town history can be complete without including the activities of the Red Cross and Chapter 6 is devoted to this organization with a roster of the local unit. Chapter 7 is devoted to "The Legal Advisory Board."

One hundred and fourteen pages are taken up by the above reports by several writers, none more full than it should be, and some sketches far too brief, for in this section is told the life and efforts of the town during two trying years.

The remainder of the book is devoted to the military side. Andover contributed thirty-two men to Battery F, National Guard, a regiment of Field Artillery newly formed in Lowell, and they were with the regiment when it became part of the 102d Field Artillery, Yankee Division. The story of the battery is told through its whole existence, by the chaplain of the 102d, an Andover man. No attempt is made to give a detailed history of the two Infantry regiments in the 26th, in which many Andover men had enlisted, other than to list the men known to have volunteered in the 101st and 103d Regiments, the date of departure and return, and a general reference to the part these regiments took in France. "British and Canadians in the World War" is the title of a short chapter of but three pages. Andover was well represented in the Canadian forces, and it seems a pity that some further statistics and details might not have been given, especially concerning the story of the organizations in which they served. The names of these volunteers will be found in the roster at the end of the book. Fifty are reported, of whom five were killed in battle.

Andover is the home of Phillips Andover Academy, and Chapter 10 is devoted to the part that school, Abbot Academy (for girls) and the public schools of the town took in the various war activities. Little is said of the war, as the share taken by students and alumni has already been told in a school war history.

The activities of the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Knights of Columbus, and other organizations including the Comfort Committee, are told in a chapter entitled "Miscellaneous Organizations." The final chapter is a modest three pages devoted to "Andover Post, No. 8, American Legion," telling of its organization, officers, delegates to convention, etc., but unfortunately not giving a complete roster of its members. Much more space should be devoted to the post history than is given in this book.

Throughout the volume liberal use has been made of pertinent illustrations. Seventy-three pages are required to give the roll of those in service, about eight or nine names appearing on each page. Full service records are given, as well as date and place of birth and present residence. A valuable addition would have been the names of parents of the men, if for no other purpose than to establish identification not only with Andover, but for future purposes. Thus closes the book, 224 pages, replete with historical information, a book of which Andover Post and town may well be proud.

The details of this work have been gone into for the express purpose of enabling post historians to have a guide for similar publications. In Massachusetts, Dalton, Winchester and Newton are preparing similar works, that of Dalton, compiled by the post historian, being nearly ready. The time will come when most every town in the country of any size will be represented by similar publications. It is up to the various Legion posts to see that work is commenced at as early a date as possible, and that the work is well done. Every post historian should be chosen because of his qualifications for

Accidents on Street Cars as Compared with Automobile Accidents

According to figures compiled by the National Safety Council just received, street railway transportation in the largest cities of the United States has come to rank with the safest form of traffic we have.

In a report covering five years, just completed, the Council finds that street car fatalities are gradually decreasing while automobile, truck and bus accidents are on a serious upgrade. In 1915, the Council report states, the number of people who lost their lives by street car accidents in 35 American cities with a population of 117,500,000 was 539; in 1916, 668; 1917, 785; 1918, 787; 1919, 576, and 1920, 528. The sudden drop in the last two years is credited to safety education and development of traffic control.

Automotive fatalities meanwhile, present these totals: 1915, 1,274; 1916, 1,565; 1917, 2,057; 1918, 2,330; 1919, 2,478, and 1920, 2,670.

Farm Fire Prevention Campaign

The farm fire prevention campaign, instituted by the Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation, is already bearing fruit. Inquiries are coming in steadily to the office of the secretary, asking for information about the possibilities of decreasing rates by the installation of fire extinguishers, lightning rods and the elimination of other risks. The Federation is making this campaign in order to lessen the fire risk in the country. It is believed that this is the most practical way of securing a lower insurance cost for farmers.

The investigations made by the secretary show that some farm buildings are particularly bad risks from the fact that farmers are ignorant of the regulations. For instance, where a garage or some other of the more hazardous types of buildings are erected, they are commonly placed adjoining or attached to other farm buildings. If they were placed fifty feet away from any other building, the highest premium rate would apply to them alone. When they are within fifty feet, the high rate is applied to all the buildings.

Chimneys are also a cause of high rates. The Federation will make an active campaign to have standard chimneys installed wherever possible and to see that farmers clean their old chimneys properly. Standard chimneys have walls eight inches thick or four inches thick lined with tile. All must have clean-cut openings at the base and must be kept clean.

Another point which seems to be new to farmers is that they can secure a lower rate if they have a standard fire extinguisher in the house. On buildings of any considerable size and value, a large proportion of the cost of an extinguisher can be saved on the first premium.

Of the 22,000 criminals examined by the superintendent of New York State's reformatories, only four were college graduates. Seven per cent in a group of 1,000 prisoners had high school education, 25 per cent finished grammar school, and 64 per cent had attended only primary grades.

Returned Missionary Tells of Conditions in China

Roy Stafford, who has been a missionary in China for a number of years addressed a goodly number at the Sunday evening service held in the Methodist church. Using as a text these words, "Go ye, therefore, and make disciples of all nations," he spoke as follows:

Missionary work cannot be carried on without the backing of the churches at home, and therefore it is necessary for all Christians to be loyal to this great cause. The church has realized to a degree the commission laid upon it and has done great work to support the work in foreign fields.

The treasurers of the different boards in China handle between four and five million dollars a year.

At present there are six thousand Protestant missionaries to carry on the work abroad. There are also a large number of Chinese used in all capacities, there being large numbers of Chinese doctors, preachers, etc., who help to carry on this great work.

The Chinese people are proud of their history and of their national life and they have a good reason to feel this way because their history goes back four thousand years and in their history are the names of great scholars, statesmen and artists of whom they may well be proud.

In this country we call the Chinese heathens and they call us barbarians. We are about even in our respect of each other. They look upon us as young upstarts, as their history dates back centuries.

China has done much to rid herself of the curse of opium and almost accomplished it seven years ago, but the poppy is still raised in the outlying districts of China and is sold in a way similar to that in which liquor is sold here today.

At the recent Washington conference an arrangement was made between China and Japan, fostered by other nations at which time Japan agreed to quit a certain part of China and she has carried out her promise. Japanese people were unable to incur the hatred of the Chinese because Japan is an industrial nation and needs a market, but China hates her and will not use her merchandise. For many years Japan has suffered from what she has done to China in the past.

The political situation is more hopeful than it has been in seven or eight years. A great step forward has been made in China and progress will continue until China is a strong and united nation, but it may take it many years. In China the student body makes it hopeful. There are large numbers of universities in different parts of the country, although there are not enough to educate all a good start has been made. There are also many mission schools and all students are patriotic.

At present there are four hundred million people in China and of this number four hundred thousand are Christians, only one out of every thousand people. This means that a great work has to be done. Today the Chinese that are becoming educated in this country and in the missions and universities of China are coming forward to help in this great work.

C. T. Charles Litchfield; V. T. Mrs. Alfred J. Lundgren; Secretary, Mrs. Lizzie S. Barnes; C. Mrs. Daniel H. Poor; F. S. David Wilkins; F. Daniel H. Poor; M. William MacDonal; pianist, Miss Doris Wilkinson; Register, James Lawrie; P. C. T. Mrs. Frances Benson. By special request of Lodge Deputy Robinson it was voted to postpone the installation of officers one week and hold it Monday evening, August 14.

The special Good of the Order on next Monday evening will be in charge of David Wilkinson, Charles Litchfield and Daniel H. Poor. The special committee of the outing reported through its chairman David Wilkinson that all arrangements had been made for the outing to Salem Willows to be held on Saturday, August 12.

Auto barges will leave Good Templar hall at 8.30 a. m. Full particulars later.

Methodists Win Three Games

The Methodist Church Volley Ball team defeated the St. Josephs in three games Monday evening before a very good crowd of supporters. The games were full of pep and both teams deserve much credit for their splendid sportsmanship.

The scores were, 21 to 4, 21 to 10, and 21 to 9.

The following played on the Methodist team: George Brown, Carl Wells, Harold Wells, E. W. Brown and Rev. C. M. Shaul. St. Josephs: Joseph Clinton, Clinton Stevenson, Ben Dane, Joseph Pratt and Arthur Stevenson.

Make National Fight Against Oiled Milk

The Farm Bureau Federation of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont got together this week supporting the national fight against "oiled" milk, or milk from which the butter fat has been removed and coconut or other vegetable oil substituted. After hearing a statement of the danger of delay in the Senate in passing the Volstead bill, bidding the inter-state traffic in oiled milk, the three Federations invited Dr. A. W. Gilbert, Massachusetts Commissioner of Agriculture, to go to Washington and appear at a hearing to urge the immediate passage of the bill. It was passed by an overwhelming majority in the House, but there is grave danger that it will be delayed in the Senate through the efforts of the manufacturers of this bogus milk.

Such efforts at delay were successful last year in holding up state legislation to put oiled milk out of business in New York, but the bill was passed in the state last spring. New Jersey was also successful in getting a law prohibiting the sale of oiled milk. In spite of the delay campaign of the manufacturers, legislation is now held up successfully in Virginia and Kentucky. The farm bureaus of the country are coming to the front in demanding that the bill be taken up and acted upon in the Senate. It is a measure which needs only an hour or two of debate, and it will not take up much time needed for the more important things now before the Senate. It is felt by the farm bureaus, however, that the dairy industry of the entire country is in peril from this bogus milk and that the consumers should be protected from it just as much as the farmers.

The climate of South Africa is particularly adapted to fruit-growing. Pears, apples, plums, peaches and grapes are extensively and profitably grown on the highlands as far north as Rhodesia, and tropical fruits are found along the west and east coasts.

SYNOPSIS

1-APRIL.—General factotum in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon, in the small town of Warbleton Lulu Bett leads a dull, cramped existence, with which she is constantly at enmity, though apparently satisfied with her lot. She has natural thoughts and aspirations which neither her sister nor her brother-in-law seemingly can comprehend. To Mr. Deacon comes Bobby Larkin, recently graduated high-school youth, secretly smothered of Deacon's older daughter, Diana, an applicant for a "job" around the Deacon house. He is engaged, his occupation to be to keep the lawn in trim. The family is excited over the news of an approaching visit from Deacon's brother Ninian, whom he had not seen for many years. Deacon jokes with Lulu, with subtle meaning, concerning the coming meeting.

And the black fireplace—there was Mrs. Bett to the life. Colorless, fireless, and with a dust of ashes.

In the midst of all was Lulu herself reflected in the narrow pier glass, bodiless-looking in her blue gingham gown, but somehow alive—natural.

This pier glass Lulu approached with expectation, not because of herself but because of the photograph on its low marble shelf. A large photograph on a little shelf-ess. A photograph of a man with evident eyes, evident lips, evident cheeks—and each of the six were rounded and convex. You could construct the rest of him. Down there under the glass you could imagine him extending, rounded and convex, with plump hands and curly thumbs and snug clothes. It was Ninian Deacon, Dwight's brother.

Every day since his coming had been announced Lulu, during the parlor, had seen the photograph looking at her with its eyes somehow new. Or were her own eyes new? She dusted this photograph with a difference, lifted, dusted, set it back, less as a process than as an experience. As she dusted the mirror and saw his trim semblance over against her own bodiless reflection, she hurried away. But the eyes of the picture followed her, and she liked it.

She dusted the south window all and saw Bobby Larkin come round the house and go to the woodshed for the lawn mower. She heard the smooth blur of the cutter. Not six times had Bobby traversed the lawn when Lulu saw Di emerge from the house. Di had been caring for her canary and she carried her bird bath and went to the well, and Lulu divined that Di had deliberately disregarded the handy kitchen taps. Lulu dusted the south window and watched, and in her watching was no quality of spying or of criticism. Rather, she looked out on something in which she had never shared, could not by any chance imagine herself sharing.

"They were all teasing me about you."

"They were?" This was a new thought to him. Teasing her about him, were they? He straightened. "Huh!" he said, in magnificent evasion.

"I had to make them stop, so I teased you. I—I never wanted to." Again the upward look.

"Well!" Bobby stared at her. "I never thought it was anything like that."

"Of course you didn't." She tossed back her bright hair, met his eyes full. "And you never came where I could tell you. I wanted to tell you."

She ran into the house.

Lulu lowered her eyes. It was as if she had witnessed the exercise of some secret gift, had seen a cocoon open or an egg hatch. She was thinking:

"How easy she does it. Got him right over. But how did she do that?"

Dusting the Dwight-like piano, Lulu looked over-shoulder, with a manner of speculation, at the photograph of Ninian.

Bobby moved and pondered. The magnificent conceit of the male in his understanding of the female character was sufficiently developed to cause him to welcome the improvisation which he had just heard. Perhaps that was the way it had been. Of course that was the way it had been. What a fool he had been not to understand. He cast his eyes repeatedly toward the house. He managed to make the job last over so that he could return in the afternoon. He was not conscious of planning this, but it was in some manner contrived for him by force of his own with which he seemed to be co-operating without his conscious will. Continually he glanced toward the house.

He Straightened. "Huh!" He Said, in Magnificent Evasion.

acute color, and always motion—motion as an integral part of the desirable. But a factor of all was that Lulu herself was the participant, not the onlooker. The perfection of her dream was not impaired by any longing. She had her dream as a saint her sense of heaven.

"Lulu!" her mother called. "You come out of that damp."

She obeyed, as she had obeyed that voice all her life. But she took one last look down the dim street. She had not known it, but superimposed on her Chautauqua thoughts had been her faint hope that it would be tonight, while she was in the garden alone, that Ninian Deacon would arrive. And she had on her wool chally, her coral beads, her cameo pin.

She went into the lighted dining room. Monona was in bed. Di was not there. Mrs. Bett was in Dwight Herbert's leather chair and she lolled at her ease. It was strange to see this woman, usually so erect and tense, now actually loling, as if loling were the positive, the vital, and her ordinary rigidity a negation of her. In some corresponding orgy of leisure and liberation, Lulu sat down with no needs.

"Ine ought to make over her de-laine," Mrs. Bett comfortably began. They talked of this, devised a mode, recalled other delaines. "Dear, dear," said Mrs. Bett. "I had on a delaine when I met your father." She described it. Both women talked freely, with animation. They were individuals and alive. To the two pallid beings accessory to the Deacons' presence, Mrs. Bett and her daughter Lulu now bore no relationship. They emerged, had opinions, contradicted, their eyes were bright.

Toward nine o'clock Mrs. Bett announced that she thought she should have a lunch. This was debauchery. She brought in bread and butter, and a dish of cold canned peas. She was committing all the excesses that she knew—offering opinions, laughing, eating. It was to be seen that this woman had an immense store of vitality, perpetually submerged.

When she had eaten she grew sleepy—rather cross at the last and inclined to hold up her sister's excellencies to Lulu; and, at Lulu's defense lifted an ancient weapon.

"What's the use of finding fault with Ine? Where'd you beam if she hadn't married?"

Lulu said nothing.

"What say?" Mrs. Bett demanded shrilly. She was enjoying it.

Lulu said no more. After a long time:

"You always was jealous of Ine," said Mrs. Bett, and went to her bed.

As soon as her mother's door had closed, Lulu took the lamp from its bracket, stretching up her long body and her long arms until her skirt lifted to show her really slim and pretty feet. Lulu's feet gave news of some other Lulu, but slightly incarnate. Perhaps, so far, incarnate only in her feet and her long hair.

She took the lamp to the parlor and stood before the photograph of Ninian Deacon, and looked her fill. She did not admire the photograph, but she wanted to look at it. The house was still, there was no possibility of interruption. The occasion became sensation, which she made no effort to quench. She held a rendezvous with she knew not what.

Pavement Is Billboard.

City streets and sidewalks may be converted into temporary billboards by an invention resembling a lawn-roller that prints the advertising message in water on the asphalt.

As the machine is pushed along by its operator, a spray of water from the tank in the upper half passes through a perforated belt or drum that acts as a stencil. The belt is of fine wire gauze, with waterproof letters fastened upon it. In consequence it leaves a band of wet, dark pavement behind it, upon which the words of the advertisement stand out—dry and white.—Popular Science Monthly.

Lawrence Canoe Club Wins

Several of the tennis players of the Lawrence Canoe Club on Wednesday afternoon and were defeated four matches to one in a series of closely contested games.

Tennis is the leading sport at the Canoe Club and they have developed a group of fast, hard-hitting players who have made an excellent showing for the past few seasons when they have met teams representing practically every tennis club in this section.

The Village team although handicapped by the absence of some of their best players made a good showing and forced the Canoe Club team to exhibit their finest brand of tennis in order to win.

In the singles Ford beat Pratt 11-9 after two hard sets in which rallies were frequent, the ball crossing the net over 20 times before the point was decided. Both players stayed in the back court with swiftness, rarely coming to the net. Both played a very steady game with Ford exceptionally brilliant in the pinches and overhead.

Frye lost to Neilson after taking the first set, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Paine defeated Hadley 6-3, 7-5 in a pretty match of hard driving and sharp volleying. Paine had a flash of his last season form and his fine backhand stroke was working well.

McGrath lost to Roberts 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 in three very close sets. McGrath's cut strokes bothered Roberts throughout the match but his fine net play enabled him to win.

In the doubles McGrath and Neale were defeated by Ford and Cleveland 6-3, 8-6. The Canoe Club pair won the first set by their expert volleying but in the second set Neale and McGrath by perfect lobbing kept their opponents in the back court and twice were within a point of the set. Neale played excellent tennis and his sharply angled shot at the net won many points. Although McGrath and Neale had never played together before, their court covering was excellent.

Paine and Frye vs. Neilson and Roberts were one set each in their match when forced to stop on account of darkness.

A return match will be played on the Village courts tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Any Village players desiring to play on the team are requested to notify Henry Simmers at the Balmoral Spa.

Figured in terms of health and time—as well as money—does it pay you to launder at home?

Can't you put your time to more profitable use than to spend it over the wash tub?

And don't occasional doctor's bills occasioned by too much housework, more than offset the slight cost of letting us launder?

Local Aggregation Go Down by a 5 to 2
Score Before Oxford of Lawrence in Tightly Played Game

The Oxford of Lawrence defeated the recently reorganized Shawsheen Athletic Association baseball team on the Andover Playstead this week by the score of 5 to 2. The Village team, coached by John Reardon, is a very good one but the breaks of the game were against them. Their inability to catch the ball, the Oxford pitcher, with men on bases also helped to defeat them.

Hanlon was on the mound for the Village boys and the Oxford were not able to do much with his offerings except in the fourth inning when they scored three runs. Blodreau of the visitors hit a long fly to left field and Eddie Lindholm made a great effort to make the catch. He stumbled over a spectator and the ball fell in the long grass. Before it was found Blodreau had crossed the plate. Ordinarily it would have been good for only two bases.

The Shawsheen nine promises to become a very strong aggregation when it gets under way. Most of the players are at present employed in the construction work in the Village. The lineup included: Wiggle King, Roy Bowman, Jimmy Dyer, Billy Dalton, Eddie Lindholm, Piper Page and Hanlon the old Tremonts were also in the game. Ray Kennedy was a pinch hitter in the last inning.

Two fast double plays were made. In the sixth inning Myers reached on a pass. Ellsey smashed one at Page who threw to Dalton, forcing Myers with Ellsey being doubled at first. Legasse worked a nice one in the same inning when he caught Lindholm's liner and doubled Bowman, who had been passed, at first. Page made some great stops at short and Mack playing the same position for the Oxford did some wonderful work in short left field. Roy Bowman played one of his best games at first. Piper led with the stick for Shawsheen, getting a single and a double. He was the only player in the game to get two hits. The game was very interesting all the way and at times the great throng of onlookers was much excited.

A Diplomat

A small boy was asked to dine at the home of a distinguished professor, and his mother, fearing he might commit some breach of etiquette, gave him repeated directions as to what he should and should not do.

Upon his return from the great occasion she questioned, "Richard, did you get along at the table all right?" "Oh, yes, mother, well enough."

"You are sure you didn't do anything that was not perfectly polite and gentlemanly?"

"Why, no, nothing to speak of."

"Then something did happen. Tell me at once," she demanded.

"Why, while I was trying to cut the meat it slipped off on the floor. But I made it all right."

"What did you do?"

"Oh, I just said, sort of carelessly, 'That's always the way with tough meat.'"

Not to Be Caught Again.

It was the rush hour, and the busses were crowded—strong men, going home from business, were faint with the struggle, weak women were reading the latest Juvenile news.

"One on top, one inside!" shouted a bus conductor at a stopping place.

"Sure, now, and you wouldn't be after separatist" a daughter from her mother?" said the elder of the two women on the pavement.

"You're quite right, ma'am, I wouldn't," said the conductor, who was a married man, starting the bus.

"I did that once, and I've been regretting it ever since!"—Answers, London.

The pond will be drained shortly so that a cement floor can be laid in the paddling and swimming basins.

STORE FUTURE FOOD SUPPLY

Woodpeckers Are Wise Birds and Never Take the Chance of Finding Larder Bars.

California woodpeckers often pass much of their idle time in the light occupation of filling holes in tree trunks with pebbles. When they are really industrious, however, they manufacture these asymmetrical holes and fill them snugly with acorns. Often they allow these acorns to remain in cold storage for several months, and then, when they need extra rations, they know where a supply can readily be found. When oaks and pines grow side by side, the birds usually favor the pines as storage trees. This is probably because it is only on such trees that the outer bark presents a suitable surface for drilling the holes. No living oak trees are used, but dead oaks, from which the bark has fallen, are chosen.

The vast number of such holes that a single tree trunk can contain may be inferred from the fact that in 50 feet of a fallen pine tree in the San Jacinto mountains of California it was estimated that there were 81,800 holes. Almost without exception, the acorns are inserted into the holes. The birds take great pains to hammer them in securely. They like not only the acorns, but the grubs that are often contained in them. As for the pebbles, they must make a specialty of them when acorns are not in the market—just to keep themselves in training for handling (or should one say "biting") the new crop.—St. Nicholas.

EXPECT CHARTER SOON

Shawsheen Athletic Association to be Incorporated Will Petition for N. E. A. A. U. Membership

It is expected that the state charter of the Shawsheen Athletic Association will be received by the officers early next week. Then the organization will be a duly incorporated body.

A gigantic field day will be held on the Athletic Field Saturday afternoon, September 9. Track and field events will be held and it is expected that the crack athletes of eastern section of the country will participate in the games. An effort will be made to secure official sanction from the N. E. A. A. U. It is most probable that the sanction will be granted and in that event a field day such as is seldom seen outside college stadiums will take place.

All sorts of games and track contests will be held and already costly and elegant prizes have been received. Milton Greenwood and George Greenwood of Greenwood Brothers Plumbing Co., have donated beautiful cups. The Boston Excavating Company has also donated a cup and many other gifts as prizes are expected. Frank H. Hardy has also presented a cup to the committee.

President William M. Wood of the American Woolen Company has kindly accepted the honorary presidency of the association. The other officers are as follows: George M. Wallace, active president and treasurer; J. Burns, vice president and Irving Piper, secretary.

The object of the association is to further and encourage all athletic activities in the Village, such as baseball, football, running and track events, outdoor winter sports, lawn tennis and bowling on the green.

With the arrival of the charter, it will remain open until a membership of 250 has been secured. The membership will not be limited to residents of the Village. For the charter members the annual dues will be $6 which will include all privileges under the constitution and by laws, also admission to all games sponsored by the organization. The arrival of the charter, membership in the N. E. A. A. U. will be petitioned for and shortly a meeting will be held by the members to accept the constitution and by-laws. The association promises to be most successful.

Tennis on the Spa Courts

The final match of the tennis tournament had to be postponed until later in the season because of rain. Copeland Draper defeated Harry Pratt in the semi-finals in a very close match, making him eligible for the finals with Howard Frye. The match between Messrs. Frye and Draper was started and two sets were played. Mr. Frye winning the first and Mr. Draper the second. The rain then came down heavily and they had to stop. The match will not be played until September as Mr. Draper has left the Village and will not return for six weeks.

Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Bain will play the ladies' singles finals next week.

Shawsheen Defeats Boston

The Shawsheen Bowling-on-the-Green club defeated Boston this week, 17 points to 11. Gordon, Jonathan, Shea and Frye made up the Shawsheen team while Minge, Grover, Anderson and Clark comprised the visitors.

NOTES

The Burns Cup Tournament and competition promoted by the Shawsheen Village Bowling-on-the-Green club is almost finished. Only a few more games remain to be played before the final match.

There was only one match played off Saturday afternoon and it was a great struggle for supremacy. William Gordon and Frank Jamieson were the players. Gordon won, 21 to 12. A large and enthusiastic gathering saw the game. Both men started to play very cautiously. From the 10th shot, right up the finish Gordon's play was most efficient. He outpointed Jamieson in all departments and won a great victory. It was a great surprise to most of the members present. Jamieson was always viewed as a formidable player to meet. The playing of Gordon was the best seen on the green this season. He seemed to be able to get his shots just where he needed them to win. This game will be talked about for a long time to come, and as this is Gordon's first year, the victory is all the more creditable.

George Frye was unable to play "Dave" Archibald owing to illness, but the match was held over until later.

A points competition will be started directly after the cup competition is completed. This is where the novices will come in. The committee in charge of the games and competitions merit the gratitude of the members for the manner in which they are catering to their interests.

The club goes to Boston Saturday, August 12. The three rinks which defeated the Boston club will bowl again and the fourth rink includes Kayley, Harrison, W. Gordon and George Skea.

Shawsheen Juniors Lose

The Shawsheen Juniors lost a heavy batting game to the Andover Juniors this week on Balmoral Field by the score of 12 to 11. Only seven innings were played. Both teams scored three runs in the first inning. In the fifth both pitchers weakened. Andover got two, and Shawsheen four, in that inning. Loose fielding by Shawsheen and some timely hitting by Andover gave the contest to the latter team in the last inning. L. Topping starred for the losers while F. Blunt and J. Murphy shared the honors for the victors. The same teams play Saturday in Andover.

Reorganize Shawsheen A. A.

The Shawsheen A. A. Baseball team has been reorganized and Eddie Perron of South Lawrence is the new manager. Charles Flanagan is captain and John Riordan is coach.

The makeup of the team is as follows: Catchers, King and Dyer; pitchers, Collins, Slack and Newell; infielders, Bowman, Dalton, Payne, Page and McKay; outfielders, Flanagan; Ray Kennedy, Lindholm and Hanlon.

Wagon Collides with Auto

A horse and wagon, owned and driven by Freeman Abbott of Balmoral, crashed into an auto owned by Jewett Flag of the Shawsheen Rug Company with offices in the Postoffice building. The auto was parked near the Postoffice building about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon when Mr. Abbott's outfit came along and collided with it. The wagon was filled with grain and made a heavy load. The light auto was pushed upon the sidewalk and the mud guard, front spring and dust pan on one side were broken. The wagon escaped damage. No one was injured, there being no one in the auto or near it at the time of the collision.

OPPOSED CREAM IN COFFEE

Frenchman, a Century Ago, Ascribed All Sorts of Human Ills to the Custom.

Arsene Thiebaud de Bernand, a Frenchman a century ago to the Bibliotheque Massarin, Paris, opposed with ferocity the then comparatively new custom of adding milk or cream to black coffee. The latter, in the author's language, was "consoling, joyful and, I had nearly said, spiritual" in its effects. But let ever so small a quantity of milk or cream be added and the result upon the human economy was most disastrous.

Since the dawn of this vicious custom pneumonia and consumption in the cities had increased one-half and rural communities formerly immune were now beginning to show cases of these ailments.

According to Le Progres Medical, which obtained the above information from a new popular review, La Connaissance, de Bernand claimed that many eminent physicians shared his opinions. He seems to have had an obsession that all mixtures of fluids were injurious, and extended his prescription of milk addition to tea, chocolate and spirits. Sustained by this preconceived notion, he was able to publish a long diatribe in 1826, in which he accuses cafe au lait of causing almost every derangement known to medicine. But, rapid as he sounds, he was fatuous enough to admit that perhaps 10 per cent of the people might be tough enough to drink cafe au lait without disastrous results.—New York World.

BUILDING UP BUFFALO HERDS

Department of Agriculture Has Had Gratifying Success With This Part of Its Work.

Forty-six new buffalo calves are reported on three of the four game preserves maintained by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture for the special protection of buffalo. On the national bison range, in Montana, there are 417 buffalo, including 28 calves born this spring. Fifteen calves are reported at the Wind Cave preserve, in South Dakota, and 8 at Niobrara, Neb.

The department has been very fortunate in maintaining the herds established at these three points and at Sully Hill, North Dakota. There are relatively few large buffalo herds now scattered over the country, and the biological survey has made special efforts to provide suitable ranges and protection for what threatened a few years ago to become an extinct species of native American animal.
